

Joint Seminar Sciences Po-CERI / King's College London
July 11 2014

The Making of Foreign and Defense Policy: Actors and Processes

9:00 Opening Statement: Alain Dieckhoff (Director of the CERI)

9:15-12:30 First Session: Defense Policy Making – Hugo Meijer (King's College London)

Panel 1

- Mark Beautement (King's College London): "Peace in Whose time? Assessing the Impact of Government Actions on Local and National Reconciliation Scenarios, with Lessons from Afghanistan's Sangin Accord"
- Oleg Svet (King's College London): "The Build-up of Iraqi Military Power through Security Cooperation, 1968-1990: A Case Study in Recipient Decision-making vis-a-vis Foreign Military Assistance"

Discussant: Thomas Lindemann (CESDIP, University of Versailles Saint-Quentin)

10:45 Coffee Break

Panel 2

- Samuel Faure (Sciences Po): "The Rafale Against Europe: An International Political Sociology of the Policy-Making"
- Alice Pannier (Sciences Po): "Bilateral Defence Policy-Making: the Missing Link?"

Discussant: Anand Menon (King's College London)

12:30 Lunch at CERI

13:30-16:45 Second Session: Foreign Policy Making – Gilles Riaux (CETOBAC)

Panel 3

- Nikki Ikani (King's College London): "Revisiting European Foreign Policymaking in changing times: integrating rationalist and ideational logics"
- Avinash Paliwal (King's College London): "Advocacy Coalitions and Shaping of India's Contemporary Afghanistan Policy 1996-2001"

Discussant: Christian Lequesne (Sciences Po-CERI)

15:00 Coffee Break

Panel 4

- Méliсса Levaillant (Sciences Po): "Analysing Diplomatic Structures to Understand Foreign-Policy Behaviour. A Sociological Approach to India's Diplomatic Skills and Practices in a Changing World"
- Charles Sitzenstuhl (Sciences Po): "Opening the Black Box of the Decision-Maker: Lessons Foreign Policy Analysis Should Take from Political Psychology and History"

Discussant: David Houghton (King's College London)

17:00 Concluding Remarks: Anand Menon (King's College London)