

European Review of International Studies (ERIS)

CALL FOR SPECIAL ISSUES 2022 and 2023

The Editors of the European Review of International Studies (3 issues a year published by Brill) invite submissions either from individuals or from teams of scholars for the publication of a special issue of the journal in 2022 or 2023.

We are open to all imaginative proposals but particularly welcome those from younger European scholars in line with ERIS's mission to support international studies in Europe. Although any subject area within International Relations is eligible, we wish to encourage work on aspects of the following themes: changing diplomatic practices; social change and international politics; the international politics of health; Europeans' various encounters with their imperial past; the international politics of migration and diaspora.

A 3 to 4 pages proposal can be sent to the editors by email. It must contain four elements: (1) a general presentation of the topic; (2) a provisional list of contributions and contributors; (3) data on the timeframe; (4) CVs of the guest editor(s).

Christopher Hill, University of Cambridge (cjh68@cam.ac.uk)

Christian Lequesne, Sciences Po (christian.lequesne@sciencespo.fr)