

Alejandra Guraieb

Alejandra holds a Bachelor of Laws, Summa Cum Laude, from Universidad Iberoamericana, Mexico City. She has advised energy companies on development of renewable energy projects in Mexico, working as an Environmental and Energy Associate at a renowned law firm. She has a Master's in Environmental Policy with concentrations in International Energy and Diplomacy from PSIA, Sciences Po, Paris. During her graduate studies she was an intern at the Legal Affairs Programme of the United Nations Climate Change Secretariat (UNFCCC) in Bonn.

Alejandra is passionate about global climate governance, particularly in the process of climate law-making. In her free time, she enjoys scuba diving, Egyptology and supporting a turtle camp in Acapulco, Mexico.