

Helena Alviar Garcia,

University Professor,
has joined the Law School.

Specialist in property and development rights, she is also interested in social rights. She works on gender equality issues and studies human rights in post-conflict and regime-change
contexts.

Find out more

Adam Baczko,
a National Centre for Scientific Research (CNRS) Fellow, has joined the Centre for International Studies
(CERI).

His research is dedicated to the social dynamics in civil wars and international interventions. He is especially interested in the conflicts in Syria and Afghanistan.

Find out more

Thierry Balzacq,
University Professor,
has joined the Centre
for International Studies (CERI).

His work focuses on the comparative study
of grand strategies,
safety performances
and the effects of a reinforced pluralism on the world order.

Find out more

Émilie Biland,
University Professor,
has joined the Centre for the Sociology of Organisations (CSO).

She conducts her work on the sociology of public action and the sociology of law. Her research analyses the contribution of organisations and professional groups to the inequality dynamics in professional and private life.

Find out more

Philipp Brandt

has joined the Centre for the Sociology of Organisations (CSO) as an Assistant Professor.

With the help of both quantitative and qualitative methods, he studies the constitution of professions in a historical, economic and technological perspective. His main project analyses the institutionalisation of the role of "data scientists".

Find out more

Michele Fioretti

has joined the Department of Economics as an Assistant Professor.

His work focuses particularly on the economic dynamics in sectors with a social dimension, such as the health sector or the energy sector. He is also interested in behavioural economics.

Find out more

Juliette Galonnier

has joined the Centre for International Studies (CERI) as an Assistant Professor.

Her work focuses on the social construction of racial and religious categories and the overlap between them. Notably, she studies the issue of Islamic minorities in a multitude of national contexts (Europe, North America).

Find out more

Angela Greulich,

University Professor,
has joined the Center for Studies in Social Change
(OSC).

Her research is dedicated to the interactions between demographic dynamics, women's working activities
and social policies in European countries.

Find out more

Junnan He

has joined the Department of Economics as an Assistant Professor.

His research is based in the field of econometrics and decision theory, focusing mainly on the selection of variables in economic models and random choice models.

Find out more

Kerstin Holzheu

has joined the Department of Economics as an Assistant Professor.

Her work deals with labour economics and business economics
from the standpoint of applied
macroeconomics.
In particular, she is interested in the question of workforce allocation.

Find out more

Guillaume Lachenal,

University Professor,
has joined the
médialab.

A historian specialised in health, he intends to develop the study of relationships between human health, the environment, politics and society by combining the methods and data of the hard and social sciences.

Find out more

Marleen Marra

has joined the Department of Economics as an Assistant Professor.

She combines game theory and econometric models in order to respond to issues of public interest.

She takes a particular interest in the behaviour of businesses and individuals in the bid markets, notably their participation in calls for bids and in digital platforms.

Find out more

Hugo Meijer,
a National Centre for Scientific Research (CNRS) Fellow, has joined the Centre for International Studies
(CERI).

Focusing on foreign policy decision-making and security issues, he is interested in the reconfiguration of American hegemony in the face of the rise of China and its ramifications for American alliances in Europe and the Asia-Pacific region.

Find out more

M'hamed Oualdi, University Professor, has joined the Centre for History.

Historian of the Maghreb in the modern and contemporary era, he has studied the transition of Tunisia,
from Ottoman
possession to French colonisation of North-African societies.
Thanks to important European support (ERC), he is undertaking a project on the end of slavery in the entirety of the Maghreb region.

Find out more

Sylvain Parasio, University Professor, has joined the médialab.

He studies the way
digital technologies transform the way we inform ourselves, debate and interact in the public sphere. He also explores new and innovative survey methods in the social sciences.

Find out more

Natasha Wunsch

has joined the Centre for European Studies and Comparative Politics (CEE) as an Assistant Professor.

Her work involves European integration and democratisation, with a special focus on the enlargement of the EU and the democratic transformations in the post-communist space.

Find out more

